

To all of our wonderful community,

Montreal Improv has taken the difficult but necessary decision to postpone all upcoming classes and shows due to COVID-19, effective immediately. In doing so, we are joining many other community institutions in a collective effort to limit potential exposure to this virus. The health and safety of our community is our top priority and one thing that improv has taught us is when to blackout the scene.

Here's what's happening:

CLASSES

All upcoming classes are on hold but not cancelled. Once we re-open our doors, we will do our best to reschedule any and all missed classes. We are sensitive to the economic impact of this situation on our students and classes@montrealimprov.com will be active during the shutdown to answer your questions.

SHOWS

All upcoming shows are on hold until further notice. Pre-purchased tickets have been refunded.

RENTALS

Our rooms are no longer available for rentals. If you have an upcoming rental, please email contact@montrealimprov.com to discuss your options.

RESUMPTION OF SERVICES

Montreal Improv will follow government and institutional guidance for when we may re-open our doors. Ultimately, the duration of this shutdown will determine how we will implement resuming our services and address any financial concerns. We all hope for a safe and speedy end to this situation.

If you have any other questions during the closure, please email contact@montrealimprov.com.

At the core of improv is the idea that we should support one another onstage. We hope you carry that idea with you offstage as well. We can't wait to invite everyone back under our roof to laugh and delight in the joy of improv. Until then, please take care of yourselves and each other.

See you soon,
Montreal Improv
